Smoking in the Home

Smoking in your home poses a huge risk of second-hand smoke, and accidental fire.

80% of cigarette smoke in the home is completely invisible.

After you stub out your cigarette, the smoke lingers in the home for up to five hours.

Not only are children at higher risk of disease, but pets can suffer too. They're at higher risk of breathing problems and cancer.

But I've opened the window or door, that helps, doesn't it? Nope. Smoking in separate rooms, opening windows, using an extractor fan or air purifiers – they don't work. That toxic smoke is still lingering like an unwanted guest!

Can it really cause a fire?

Absolutely. Smoking materials are one of the largest causes of accidental fires in Wales and lead to deaths each year. Not just your cigarette but your lighters as well as vapes and their chargers.

Concerned about fire safety?

Ensure your smoke alarm is working. Contact your local fire service for advice, or contact your landlord, letting agent, or housing association as soon as possible.

Protect your home, family and pets – stop smoking in the home.

Take it outside and take at least 6 steps away from your door. Stub it out and dispose safely.
